

Announcement: Perinatal Nursing Educational Contact Hour Program
USING SIMULATION TO CLOSE THE GAP BETWEEN WHAT WE KNOW AND WHAT WE DO

Wednesday, March 31, 2010

12:00 - 1:00 PM EDT

Contact Hour 1.0

Pending RISNA Approval

The National Perinatal Information Center/Quality Analytic Services contact hour webinar and presentation on “Using Simulation to Close the Gap between What We Know and What We Do”. The webinar will provide maternal/child nurses with the basics of using simulation by providing an immersive patient care experience and creating and capturing the objective performance measures in a dynamic simulation setting.

Objectives:

- Describe the basic flow of providing an immersive patient care management experience
- Identify the importance of creating and capturing objective performance measures in a dynamic setting

Presenter Information

Jane Kleinman, RN, MAOM

Ms. Kleinman is a senior level healthcare professional with demonstrated success in program analysis, design, development, infrastructure implementation, regulatory compliance, and operational turn-around. She is faculty and director of special projects at Loma Linda University Medical School Medical Simulation.

Kristy Ann Chambers, RN, MSN

Ms. Chambers has specialty expertise with operations, space design based on program need, equipment options, inter-professional scenario writing with performance based outcome measures and faculty training with mentoring in simulation education methodology. She is a Master Trainer for the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality Team STEPPS and has contributed as an author and software programmer on multiple national simulation projects.

Both speakers are principles of the Medical Simulation Design, Inc. which provides comprehensive integrated program planning, design, implementation and sustainability for medical simulation education programs.

The evaluation and post-test will be provided following the webinar. Upon completion of the post-test, a contact hour certificate will be provided via email. Certificates can be expected approximately 1-2 weeks after the event.
